It shows you also how to put your dress together, and how to add the very necessary finishing touches that prevent your dress from looking "home-made."

4606—Printed and plain crepe satin, heavy crepe de Chine, voile and silk crepe are recommended for this frock. The Deltor shows you step by step how to make and adjust the unusual grille, and how to make the beaded ornament.

Butterick Design 4602

WEEKLY NEWS BULLETIN

Issued by Publicity Commissioner, Government Buildings Edmonton.

Wheat Pool Incorporated
Under the name of The Alberta Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited, the new Alberta wheat pool has been incorporated under the laws of the province with respect to co-operative associations. The week of August 20-25 has been named as the period for the campaign to secure signatures to the wheat pool contract from the farmers of the province.

Harvest Help Arriving
Practically half of the number of harvest hands required in Alberta have now been received and all placed on farms, according to the bureau of labor. During the week end about 1400 more arrived in the province and are being placed this week. Two more excursions from the east, one on the 21st and the other on the 22nd, will bring a large number. Manitoba is now through its harvesting season, and those harvest hands now arriving from the East will come to Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Prince Coming Soon

The Prince of Wales, will sail from England the first week in September to visit his ranch in Alberta, coming directly to this province as soon as landing. He will return home about the end of October. The Earl and Countess of Minto are also to spend some time on their ranch adjacent to that of the Prince.

Conventions in Alberta

Conventions which are to be held in Alberta during the next month or so include the national telephone convention in Edmonton the last week in August, the convention of sanitary engineers of Canada in Calgary, Sept. 5 to 7, the Canadian Brotherhood of Trainmen in Calgary, Sept. 17 and 18, and the general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada in Calgary, Sept. 16 to 23.

Alberta's Death Rate

Statistics issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show the death rates for each province of the Dominion as follows:
—Infant death rate—Prince Edward Island, 92.7; Nova Scotia, 125.3; New Brunswick, 112.1; Ontario, 115; Manitoba, 115.4; Alberta 97.5; British Columbia, 72.9; the percentage being fixed on 1000 living births. Death rate per 1000 of population—Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario, 1.1; Manitoba, 7; Saskatchewan, 6; Alberta, 5; British Columbia, 3. This shows that the death rate in Alberta and Saskatchewan is the lowest in all Canada.

Preparing for Plebiscite

Preparations are being made now for the taking of the plebiscite on November 5, on the liquor act proposals. J. D. Hunt, clerk of the executive council, has issued special instructions as to the method of voting under the transferable vote system, and these instructions are to be widely distributed in order that the public may be properly informed on the new method.

Made Good in Alberta

G. E. Boulet, who at present is staying in Idaho, in a letter written back to Alberta, tells how he purchased land in the vicinity of Edmonton 14 years ago for $20.50 an acre, and sold it in 1909 for $95 an acre, having earned it in the intervening years.

New Alberta Senator

J. L. Coit, Liberal member of the Legislature for the riding of Groulx, has been appointed to the Senate of Canada in the vacancy created by the death of Senator Forget of Banff. Mr. Coit was a former member of the Stewart Government in Alberta. His appointment to the federal house creates the second vacancy in the Alberta house; the death of the State member for Clearwater, having occurred last week.

Contracts for Branch Lines

Following the final signing of the necessary agreements by the officials of the C.P.R. and E.D. and B.C., in which there had been some delay, the provincial railways department were able to award contracts for the past week for construction of both the Grande Prairie and Bertha extensions in the north country. The announcement was made during the week by Hon. V. W. Smith, minister of railways.

Alberta, young as it is, has several big things to its credit. One of the finest examples of co-operative effort is the National Hall insurance scheme, which has been operating successfully for several years, past, and has proved a fine thing for the farmers in areas subject to hail. Under the scheme the machinery of rural municipal organization is taken advantage of to provide the secretarial work. At the end of the season the "v" are totalled up, and each farmer who has insured himself with the Board is assessed an amount sufficient to cover losses, and pay administrative expenses.

Wool—Dealers say buying demand is very slow; best fine grades will still bring 20c; coarse wool around 16c.

Do you want markets for your grain?

In 1917 the grain used for purposes of distillation in Canada amounted to 88,000,000 bushels, and the average importation of liquor was $4,000,000 per annum. In 1921 only 9,000,000 bushels of grain were used and the importation of liquor was increased to $32,000,000.

That is, the Farmers have lost a market for 80,000,000 bushels of grain and the manufactured product is imported instead, and the country is poorer by $28,000,000.

STOPPING A SQUEALER

By Hugh F. Grinstead.

The summer after his graduation from the university, where he had specialized in geology, Scott McCall spent a month prospecting the Klamath Mountains of eastern Oklahoma. He was in the employ of a company that hoped to find novaculite or "Arkansas stone," and open up a quarry. Novaculite is a fine-grained siliceous rock from which whetstones and oilstones such as razor hones and the hones used by dentists, jewellers and engravers are made. The valuable stone had been found in Arkansas just across the state line, where the quarrying of it constituted an important industry.

After spending a few days examining the formation about one of the old quarries in the Hot Springs district, young McCall went to his new field. He left the railway at a little station near the state line and hired a half-breed Choctaw to haul him and his outfit over a mountain road to the head of Buck Creek, where he made camp. After assisting him to set up the tent, the Indian departed, promising to come back in four weeks.

McCall found himself in a rugged and sparsely settled region. Pine and cedar timber covered some of the peaks; long stretches of oak, hickory and walnut were growing on the slopes. The only evidence of civilization were hands of half-wild hogs of the razor-back type and an occasional lean cow. The nearest house was five miles from camp.

It was near the middle of July when McCall began prospecting, but in spite of the hot weather he went on long tramps every day, carrying in his knapsack over his shoulder a small aneroid barometer, a geologist's hammer and a clinometer for measuring the dip of a vein or the slope of a ledge.

At the end of three weeks he had explored nearly every stream bed, bluff and ridge within a radius of ten miles without having discovered any promising indications of the stone. From a bee hunter he learned of a peculiar outcrop of white rock farther down one of the streams than he had expected. Returning from a disappointing search in that direction late one afternoon, he came upon a dozen gaunt, sandy hogs rooting among the bunches of this grass that grew in an open glade. There were an old sow and five or six half-grown pigs; they were feeding on grass-nuts, a small bulb that resembles wild onion. Some of the creatures bore in their ears the mark of their owner; some had not even that slight sign of domestication. When they caught sight of him they darted into the brush at the edge of the glade.

Three pigs rooting among the leaves of a fallen tree top had failed to hear the warning whist of the old sow above the rustle of dead leaves and twice. They did not see the strange creature walking slowly up behind, and when McCall stopped within a yard of them and slapped his hands together they squealed in terror and dashed away blindly. Two of the pigs were across the open ground in the direction of the old hogs, but the third scuttled under the tangle of dead branches through which it could see the open ground and safety beyond. Between two close-growing limbs the size of a man's arm the creature thrust its head. But it had miscalculated the size of the opening, halfway through it stopped and wriggled backward. As it came back it moved sideways where the crack was narrower and heaved stuck fast. Like pigs of every age and breed, it began to struggle and squeal lustily when it found that it could not free itself; then with usual porcine obstinacy it crowded its neck closer into the crotch instead of moving back a few inches in the opposite direction.

Hoping to release the straggling captive, McCall sprang forward and dropping to his knee, reached into the tangle of small branches. At that moment he heard an unusual noise and turned to see not only the old sow but the entire band bearing down upon him from the fringe of undergrowth barely fifty yards away. Their rescue grunts blended into a roar of rage. With bristles raised, the angry beasts were charging fearlessly at the rescuer of their mate. It was hard for McCall to believe that those swift, ferocious creatures were so intimately related to the wretched lazy porker of the farm.

He was not long in concluding that he must get beyond reach of their clamping jaws. Even at that distance he could see the gleaming tusks of the old stag, one tip of which would almost sever a limb. The nearest tree was more than a hundred feet away, and McCall knew that he could not reach it ahead of the racing swine. Before him was the fallen tree, the quarrying of it constituted an important industry. Apparently the tree had been down two or three years; the branches were dead and broken. There was one, however, that thrust upward and outward and appeared to be large enough to sustain his weight.

The band of clamoring hogs were within twenty yards of the boy when he jumped upon the tree trunk and crawled out upon the half-rotted branch as far as he dared. The hogs were below him in an instant, circling round the fastened pig. Some of them stood with their forefeet upon the tree trunk, tipping the hairy losses with their teeth and glaring up at their quarry. McCall involuntarily crept out farther upon the branch until a warning crack brought him to a halt.

Trembling and fearful, he watched the infuriated hogs milling almost within reach of his feet. The old stag had clamped his tusks together until flecks of blood showed on the foam that dripped from his jaws. At every fresh outburst from the pigs, and all the hogs except the old sow retreated a few yards; some of them began to root in the grass. But when McCall changed his position slightly to escape his cramped legs, the pig mistook the movement and began squealing again. More vicious than ever, the hogs all crowded forward, and the crush of their bodies seemed likely to snap off the dead branch and lead the victim of their wrath in their midst.

McCall feared that another such onslaught would be his undoing; apparently the only way to induce the hogs to stay back was to keep the pig quiet. If he could get a few yards start, he thought he might be able to run and reach a safer place for he now believed that the hogs would not leave the squealing pig to follow him far. But how was he to keep the pig from making an uproar and bringing them upon him the moment he touched the ground?

A downward glance showed him the head of the pig looking up at him. The little animal was not directly under him but at one side; in its efforts to get as far as possible from the man the terrified creature had wedged itself into a narrow crack. "You little runt!" McCall exclaimed in exasperation. "If you had even a hog sense, you'd know enough to slip your mealy head this way a few inches and take it out. If I could reach you I'd pull you out!"

But there was no way of reaching the little mischief-maker without dropping to the ground and crawling that way foolishly. The savage herd would chew him to pieces. Again the old hogs withdrew a few yards; the pig had ceased its struggles. For more than a minute all was quiet, and McCall remained motionless. As he looked down at the pig, which he knew was merely getting its breath for another round of squealing, an idea came to him. If the obstinate little brute was so frightened at the presence of a man several feet away, what would it do if some strange object struck the ground within a few inches of its head? McCall glanced down. Well, he would find out in a second or two.

Carefully removing his hat, he waded it into a ball and, taking it in his right hand, swung it forward. At the first movement the pig again set up its terrific squealing. The hogs had turned and were rushing toward the little captive, when McCall saw a flash and released the hat. He felt that he had aimed to toss it a foot beyond the head of the squealer, but it cleared the creature's snout by barely four inches.

In its efforts to get as far away as possible from the hat, which was lying on the ground, the pig seemed to be doing its best to pull its own head off. McCall held his breath. If the hat would just remain where it was for a few seconds undisturbed by the other brutes, the pig would probably work along the opening to a place where it could get its head out. Just then McCall got a fleeting glimpse of the old stag and saw the ugly jaws close upon the hat. Then the vicious brute set one sharp hoof on it and gave an upward jerk of the head; then came the sound of rending. Now it was racing across the glade toward the timber, and the other hogs were already in pursuit.

Two minutes later McCall descended from his perch, and with a rueful glance at the remains of his hat concluded that he had lost at least four inches in the direction of the widest part of the space.

As if tired of threatening, the old sow reared upon her hind feet and, throwing her weight against the trunk, seemed to tear at the bark with her enormous teeth. This followed the cracking of straining timber, and McCall looked fearfully down at the bristly backs. Then the uproar suddenly ceased. In its struggles to get away from the hat the imprisoned pig had reached the place where its head could slip back through the opening. Now it was racing across the glade toward the timber, and the other hogs were already in pursuit.

Two minutes later McCall descended from his perch, and with a rueful glance at the remains of his hat concluded that he had lost at least four inches in the direction of the widest part of the space. As if tired of threatening, the old sow reared upon her hind feet and, throwing her weight against the trunk, seemed to tear at the bark with her enormous teeth. This followed

"Hurlbut's" for the Boys and Girls

"Hurlbut's" are without doubt the highest quality of children's shoes made today. The fact that they cost more per pair is entirely offset by the far longer time they last and keep their shape, and by the comfort and perfect fit they give. Our stock of Hurlbut's is very complete, and this season we are pleased to advise that we can fit the bigger girls wearing sizes 11 to 2 and for boys up to size 5. Bring the children in and have them properly fitted with a pair of "Hurlbut's."

J. L. COTE GOES TO THE SENATE

Edmonton Liberal Will Fill the Vacancy Caused by the Death of A. Forget

Hon. Jean Leon Cote, of Edmonton, Alberta, has been appointed to the senate to succeed the late Hon. A. Forget, of Banff, Alberta, it was officially announced by Premier King.

This appointment disposes of the open seat in the Alberta representation, but there are still two senatorial vacancies to be filled, one in New Brunswick and the other in Quebec.

Member for Grouard

Edmonton, August 15.—Mr. Cote has been active in the public life of Alberta since 1908, when he was selected to the legislature from Athabasca. He was minister of mines and provincial secretary in the late Stewart government and at present is member from Grouard.

Born in LesEchoulements, Quebec, in 1867, Mr. Cote was educated at Commercial Academy, Montmagny, Que., and Ottawa College. He was with the department of interior at Ottawa, 1882-1896, as surveyor, and came to Edmonton in 1904, where he was elected a member of the firm of Cote, Tremblay and Pearson, Limited, land surveyors and engineers.

Mr. Cote has been a member of the Carleton Place and has had extensive experience in survey work all over the prairie provinces and spent some time on the Alaska-Yukon boundary.

VALERA ARRESTED BY FREE STATE

Ennis, August 15.—Eamonn De Valera, the Republican leader, was arrested by Free State troops here today on his appearance to address a Republican meeting in the election campaign.

The arrest was made under exceptional circumstances. De Valera was addressing a meeting of electors in the metropolis when Free State troops came on the scene and fired several volleys over the heads of the crowd.

Falls in Faint

London, August 15.—A dispatch to the Press Association from Ennis, County Clare, Ireland, says Free State troops have taken Eamonn De Valera, the Republican leader, to the barracks. De Valera fell to the floor in a faint as he approached the barracks, but later he walked down the steps to the waiting troops, who walked him to the barracks.

Fighting at Kinvara

Dublin, August 15.—During a Free State election meeting today at Kinvara, on the Clare-Galway border, a free fight is reported to have taken place in which several were wounded and taken to hospital.

First Time in Open

Dublin, August 15.—Eamonn De Valera came into the open for the first time since he has been on the run, when he addressed the meeting today at Ennis, County Clare. The Republican leader is the Republican candidate for the Clare seat in the forthcoming election, and the people were speculating as to whether the Free State government would arrest him.

In some quarters it is said that if De Valera were not arrested it would be a ridiculous manifestation of weakness on the part of the government, which is supposed to have been long searching for him with a view to making him a prisoner. It is asserted that such a procedure would have been a considerable support from Prof. John MacNeill, the minister of education, who is the Republican chief opponent.

May Be Called Martyr

On the other hand, it is pointed out that now Mr. De Valera is arrested he will be widely hailed as a martyr and may be triumphantly returned at the head of the poll.

The government gave no suggestion of the course it intended to pursue if De Valera had not been taken into custody today. He had proposed to address an outdoor anti-free state demonstration in O'Connell street, Dublin, next Sunday.

SOUTHAM GETS CONTROL OF VANCOUVER PROVINCE

Lieutenant-Governor of B.C. Retains the Presidency of the Re-organized Company, With Old Policies of Leading Coast City Newspaper Unchanged—Members of the Staff to Keep Their Old Desks and Chairs.

Vancouver, August 14.—The Daily Province makes the following announcement in an editorial today: "As a result of conversations springing from associations and friendship of a generation ago, Messrs. William Southam and Sons, Limited, a firm which with its ramifications is much the most important printing and publishing house in Canada, have become associated with the Hon. W. C. Nichol in the ownership of the 'Province.' The chief consideration leading to the completion of the transaction was the personal attention required by his honor's many other interests. A growing business in a growing community must have the facilities of a wide-spread business organization at its disposal in order to meet the full measure of its destiny without proving too great a burden upon those engaged in it.

No changes of importance are contemplated in connection with the change. The newspaper will be re-organized on a larger basis with Mr. Nichol retaining its presidency, but the old policies of fairness and efficiency will be followed, and the membership of a staff, many of whom have grown from boyhood to manhood in the employ of the company, will keep their old desks and their old chairs. In the future, as in the past, first consideration of the province will be the welfare of the British Empire and the community which it serves as faithfully as loyalty, as it knows how.

SEPTEMBER ROD AND GUN

The September issue of Rod and Gun in Canada contains a wealth of information and amusement for the sportsman. "The Clerical Fishing Party" by the Rev. W. A. Bradley is an original account of a real trip, while there is a practical article on making use of the birch-bark. By Canoe Through the Wilds of Quebec" by Alfred Keator is an interesting account of a novel route, while Boonyeo Dule and W. C. Williams have contributed two good stories. The last Close Call of Martin Hunter is contained in this issue, while a picture showing the game seasons for 1923 will prove of interest to all sportsmen. Robert Page Lincoln has the fishing department of interest, while C. S. Landis, W. C. Motley, P. H. and J. W. Winslow have their regular contributions all up to the standard. Guns and Ammunition in the September issue is particularly large and interesting, while an article on the North American Buffalo adds a story by H. Mortimer Batten complete a particularly good number.

Canada's Wheat Surplus—290,000,000 bushels of wheat is the estimated amount that will be available for export from this season's crop.

New Financial Record—A new financial record was established by Canadian houses in absorbing immediately a bond issue of $22,500,000 for additional equipment on the Canadian National Railways. The bonds carry 3 per cent interest and run for fifteen years. None of this money was raised from outside sources.

RUSHING NECESSARY REPAIR WORK ON CANADIAN NATIONAL GRAIN CARS

The Transcona yards and shops of the Canadian National Railways have for weeks been busily engaged in getting engines and cars into shape for the grain movement now opening.

No. 1 photograph shows giant locomotives as they came from the Transcona shops after being "tuned up" for the greatest transportation effort of the year.

No. 2—Strings of box cars which have just been delivered from the repair yard.

No. 3—The busy "rip track" where gangs of men have been for months working on necessary repairs and on some cases almost rebuilding bad order cars in order to fit them for the grain-hauling rush.

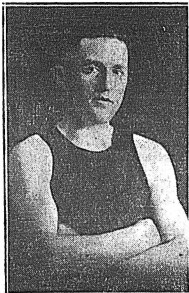

If all the engines which are ready for the grain movement were placed end to end they would stretch over some ten miles of track; while the aggregate length of the box cars which have been distributed through the yards is over 100 miles. Preparations for the new year have been made on a most substantial scale and it is anticipated that this year the Canadian National will handle a greater proportion of Canada's wheat yield than ever before.

LIEUT.-GOV. BRETT WILL OPEN STAMPEDE

While in the city last week Lieut.-Governor R. G. Brett promised to come to Red Deer on September 12th and 14th to officially open the Veterans' big Stampede and to present the prizes. This will mean an added attraction to many, and the committee are rightly elated that they are meeting with support from so many quarters.

The Board of Trade have officially promised their support to the event and the members will individually give all the help they can.

The big Carnival Queen contest, under the management of Harding Brewerton of the Rex, is off to a good start, several of the young ladies being on the job.

The cut of Kid McDonald, who will be one of the contestants in the 145 pound class. He hails from Calgary and is reported to be a comer in this class. The wrestling and boxing will be big drawing cards in the Midway.

Many enquiries have been coming in as to whether Red Deer has a camping ground for autos. Red Deer has probably the prettiest and one of the most convenient camping grounds in Alberta, and this will be made a feature of the advertising from now on.

Stanley Puffer, barrister of Edmonton, a son of W. P. Puffer of Lacombe, was in the city last week end on business.

NOTICE

Owing to weather conditions and lack of transportation, the Oddfellows Picnic has been postponed until the afternoon of August 29th, when they will hold a monster picnic in Red Deer. All Oddfellows and their families and Rebecca are invited to meet at the Michener Block at 1:30 p.m. on above date, when there will be free transportation waiting to take them to the picnic grounds. By special notice, cars will call at houses for families who cannot get to Michener Block.

THE WHEAT POOL

The canvass of the farmers of Alberta for the wheat pool is now well on its way to completion, and by the end of the week it will be known whether the necessary fifty per cent. of the wheat acreage of the province has been signed up. This is the percentage necessary to render the pool operative.

If the pool goes through, and from the prevalent feeling of the farmers, there is every likelihood that it will, Alberta will have the honor of initiating one of the greatest movements in history, the selling of wheat by the producer himself to the ultimate consumer. There are already some wheat pools doing business throughout the world, but for the most part they are on a small scale, or under government auspices.

The Piano Contest, advertising covering which appears on an inside page, is a splendid opportunity for the girl or lady in need of a good piano. Country contestants have a good show with those from the city.

Things a Watch Owner Should Know

There is not such a thing as regulation of a watch that needs cleaning. Dust or corrosion oil is just as apt to make it gain as lose. Many fine watches will continue to run for months after every bit of oil is dried up, but injury will surely follow. When the watch finally does stop, the highly tempered, finely finished steel pivots and winding parts are so badly worn that the cost of repairing will be very high and the watch may never again be as good.

To oil properly and clean a watch, the entire watch is taken apart, more than 150 parts; each part thoroughly cleaned, the old oil taken out and all pivots repolished; the watch is then put together and new oil put in the proper places.
